Mary Beth Walsh, M.D., is the executive medical director and CEO of Burke Rehabilitation Hospital in White Plains, NY. She has held this position since 1995, making her the first female CEO of a hospital in Westchester County and one of the only in New York State. She is also an associate dean and associate professor of clinical medicine at Burke’s academic affiliate, Weill Cornell Medical College, and an assistant attending physician at the Hospital for Special Surgery, both in New York City.

Dr. Walsh is currently a member of the American Hospital Association’s (AHA) Committee for Process Improvement; treasurer of the Northern Metropolitan Hospital Association’s Executive Committee; and serves on the board of directors of the American Medical Rehabilitation Providers Association (AMRPA). Dr. Walsh actively engages in health care discussions, regularly advocating in Washington D.C. for improved health care regulations.

Dr. Walsh is a fellow of the American College of Rheumatology and the American College of Physicians. She is a past-president of the New York Rheumatism Association, former chair of the Long-Term Care & Rehabilitation Section of the AHA and was a delegate of the AHA’s Regional Policy Board. Dr. Walsh also was a former member of the Review Committee for the Hoar Grant Program in Prevention & Treatment of Hip Fracture. She has authored several medical journal articles and has received honors for her work including the Hudson Valley Branch Arthritis Foundation Founders’ Award, the Women’s Healthcare Network Founder’s Award, and the AMRPA’s INDE Award, which honors those Inspired, Notable, Dedicated Efforts (INDE) that have had a direct and positive impact on the medical rehabilitation field.

Dr. Walsh is board certified in internal medicine and rheumatology. She received her bachelor’s degree from Wellesley College and her medical doctorate from Dartmouth Medical School, where she also was awarded the Dean’s Medal for having the highest academic rank in her graduation class.
